WASE Selection Procedure

If you are aspiring to get enrolment in WASE course of Wipro then it is imperative for you to understand the selection procedure. The selection procedure of WASE has three stages to be cleared by a candidate. They are as below:

WSE entrance exam (WET): This is basically an online test and the 1st stepping stone towards clearing WASE entrance. This test is further sub divided in to three categories as verbal, analytical and mathematics. The verbal and analytical portion can be prepared by practicing the books available for CAT and GMAT. Verbal includes English language questions including, synonyms, antonyms, sentence formation, comprehension of paragraphs etc. On the other hand all analytical questions from CAT and GMAT entrance exam books can be prepared. Talking about the mathematics portion, one needs to thoroughly go through mathematics course book of class 11th and 12th in order to clear this portion. It basically is based on questions related to differentiation, trigonometry, algebra, integration, calculus, matrices and coordinate geometry.

Technical Interview: If a candidate is able to clear the common entrance test of WASE then he is eligible to appear for the technical interview round. This is a very important round in the selection procedure of WASE. In this round, the technical understanding and capabilities of the candidate are checked on the basis of answers given by the candidate.

HR Interview: This is the final steep towards selection in WASE. It basically is an HR interview round with questions related to stability, willingness and other HR related clarities.

One needs to be confident while appearing for both the interview rounds. Many questions are asked in these rounds. For people who are hard working and genuine while giving answers, this selection procedure is a learning experience in itself. The results from the selection procedure are out towards the end of December.
