

MODEL QUESTION PAPER FOR STAFF NURSE

- The range of temperature measured using the conventional thermometer is
 - 94 to 108° F
 - 94 to 108° C
 - 95 to 109° C
 - 95 to 109° F
- The name of the twelfth cranial nerve is
 - Hypoglossal nerve
 - Sural nerve
 - Optic nerve
 - Femoral nerve
- Hospital acquired infection are called as
 - Latrogenic infections
 - Hospital infection
 - Noroscromial infection
 - Endogeneous infection
- The first technique in physical assessment sequence is
 - Palpation
 - Auscultation
 - Inspection
 - Percussion
- Osteoporosis is characterized by
 - Crystal deposition and brittleness
 - Brittleness and swelling of the joints
 - Porosity and brittleness of bones
 - Joint stiffness and deformity
- Schizophrenia is characterized by all the following except
 - Hallucinations
 - Delusions
 - Disorganised behavior
 - Panic attacks
- The following is a characteristic symptom of obsessive compulsive disorder
 - Repeated checking and washing
 - Fear of facing public
 - Maintaing posture for long time
 - Door hygiene
- When assessing a patient in the early stages of cirrhosis of the liver, what sign would be anticipated?
 - Jaundice
 - Periperal Edema
 - Ascites
 - Anorexia
- Guillian – Barre Syndrome
 - Is often preceded by a viral infection
 - Has a mortality of less then 5%
 - Steroids are the treatment of choice
 - Is often associated with Myelopathy
- The most effective intervention in decreasing absorption of an ingested poison is
 - Ipecac syrup
 - Milk dilution
 - Gastric invage
 - Activated charcoal