1. Discuss the history of Indian Education?
India's education system has a long history, spanning thousands of years. It includes the Vedas, Upanishads, and various schools of thought like Vaisheshika, Sankhya, and Yoga. The Mauryan Empire under Ashoka established a centralised educational system. The Gupta Empire also contributed significantly to education through its patronage of learning and the establishment of Nalanda and Vikramashila universities.
 2. Explain the System of Education in India?
The Indian education system follows a three-tier structure: primary, secondary, and higher secondary. It is primarily state-controlled and funded by the government. The National Curriculum Framework for School Education (NCF) provides a broad framework for curriculum development. Higher education is managed by various bodies like UGC, AICTE, and MHRD, with a significant number of private institutions.
 3. What are the problems existed in Indian Education?
Problems in Indian education include low literacy rates, especially among rural and marginalized communities; lack of access to quality education for all; poor infrastructure and facilities; overburdened syllabus and teaching methods; and corruption in educational institutions. There is also a gender disparity in education, with more boys than girls in schools.
 4. Discuss the enhancing strategies on environmental education and role of teacher as E.E
Enhancing environmental education involves integrating environmental themes into the curriculum, promoting sustainable practices in schools, and encouraging outdoor learning. Teachers play a crucial role as environmental educators, inspiring students to become environmentally conscious. Strategies include using local resources, involving parents, and creating green spaces in schools.
